OUR PROFILE

SAFESTAINABLE is an independent consultancy specializing in non-financial risk management. We provide advice and services that enable multinational companies operating in volatile areas to manage strategic and operational risks and to create sustainable business opportunities. Our approach relies on integrating respect for human rights standards and best practices into the business operations and security management of our clients.

YOUR MISSION

You will provide administrative support to the Managing Director, Project Manager, and our consultant team to implement ongoing projects, including in Kenya, Mozambique, and DRC. Depending on your qualifications and interests, you will carry out research and translation activities; be involved in business/project development activities; and/or support the development of human rights training curriculums or human rights compliant management systems.

YOUR PROFILE

You have a strong interest, knowledge and ideally background in Human Rights Law/IHL and/or Business and Human Rights and are enrolled at the University. As a motivated self-starter, you have proven your project management and analytical skills in the past and are eager to advance business and human rights practices worldwide. A previous working/living experience in volatile security environments and awareness of prevailing security concerns would be an asset.

We are especially interested in candidates who would be able to confidently discuss Business and Human Rights key concepts in both English and Portuguese and translate documents. Fluency in French or Arabic is an additional asset.

WE OFFER YOU

As an intern in a young and dynamic consulting company, you will have the possibility to actively support and shape the implementation of human rights standards in company policies and practices. We will offer you a monthly compensation of 500 CHF. The length of assignments will depend on your availability and qualifications, but will not exceed 6 months.
